Control Group Vignette

Issue 1: We are not certain that there is a need for a separate (neutral) vignette for the control group. See the following image for our understanding of the design:

design

Everything above the red line is the control group as we have thought of it before; however, we contend that the red line is the actual representation of the control group's progression through the survey experiment.

Since we have decided on a single story (i.e. number 3 from Jason's list) we only have a positive treatment. Before we thought there would be two frames– one positive and one negative. Now, we just have one actual frame.

TLDR; manipulations for the control group are not actually relevant when there is only a positive treatment.

Issue 2: Should our “solution” to issue 1 not be convincing to the group, here are some alternative frames for the control group.

potential vignettes for control group (non-political news articles)

1. food irradiation¹
2. Airbag Safety - lives saved
 - Headline: The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates that over 50,457 people are alive today because of their airbags since 1987. In 2017, the use of seat belts in passenger vehicles saved an estimated 14,955 lives of occupants 5 and older.

3. Internal Migration Statistics
 - Headline: Each year, roughly 40 million Americans, or about 14 percent of the U.S. population, move at least once. Much of that movement includes younger people relocating within cities, but it is trends of Americans moving to warmer climates, more affordable areas, and better job opportunities that have largely determined migration patterns in recent decades.

Notes

1: This is when food is exposed to gamma rays to treat it for bacteria and such.
